OHIO'S NEW REPUTATION

Capture of two youths accused of kidnapping and robbing an insurance agent and also holding up two filling stations by upward of 200 policemen after an all-night blockade of roads in southern Ohio is one more incident in a growing list proving this is an unhealthy state for highwaymen.

Early in the decade fear was being widely expressed that criminals, having taken advantage of automobiles and good roads to make quick getaways, would be able to hold that advantage at the expense of society. The result was to cause government to increase its police strength and efficiency.

There are few instances any more in which highwaymen can practice their trade without facing the probability of capture. Ohio is earning an invaluable reputation as a tough spot for getaways.

ADEQUATE

With passage of the emergency armaments bill by the house of representatives, the United States will be well on the way to a total of $1,336,000,000 for adequate national defense in the fiscal year 1940. The corresponding figure for the current fiscal year is $1,017,000,000.

In 1938 it was $983,000,000, an increase of $83,000,000 over 1937. In 1936 it was $880,000,000, in comparison with $663,000,000 in 1935 and $494,000,000 in 1934. It will cost more for adequate national defense during the next fiscal year than it cost to run the entire government from 1789 to 1854. On the other hand, it is about five percent of the cost of the World War. Pensions, which the veterans' administration estimated had cost the United States no less than $22,760,000,000 as of June 30 last, also must be figured into the cost of war, which is unchallenged as the most dependable way to spend money yet devised by the fertile brain of man.

GEN. FRANCO ARRIVES

Gen. Franco may need a million troops to subdue Madrid and Valencia before Spain's civil war is over, but if any doubt remained that the war's going to be over soon, Great Britain has dispelled it.

At long last the British government is on the verge of recognizing the Franco regime as the official government of Spain. John Bull, the realist, has concluded there is nothing to be gained by withholding this favor any longer.

Italy, of course, recognized the Franco government in 1936, when it was little more than a scheme on paper. So did Germany. No other important government granted recognition, preferring to remain aloof from the issue involved till it had been decided.

The issue now is decided to all intents and purposes. Nothing but an unforeseen calamity overtaking Gen. Franco's forces could keep them from winning. Otherwise there would be no moves toward recognition by Great Britain, which isn't in the habit of being on speaking terms with governments which haven't "arrived."

WHY NOT?

It's noticeable in what style experts are saying about the new clothes Americans will buy this year that more color is the big thing.

This has a familiar ring. It's impossible to remember a year since the World war when style experts weren't threatening to make tremendous strides in popularizing brighter colors.

Truth is, they have made tremendous strides, as witness any gathering of human beings today in comparison with the drab clothing worn by their fathers and mothers.

But it has been like drops of water wearing away a stone. Each year the stylists reach for the rainbow but emerge with only a small piece of it. "Why not?" the potential color bearer asks himself when urged to buy a sky blue suit with a crimson stripe, but when the fateful moment of decision comes he goes looking for something that won't make him more conspicuous than he wants to be.

Only women take the bit in their teeth, which is as it should be. Elsewhere in nature it's the male who struts in gaudy colors while his mate inconspicuously stays in the background, having no style experts to egg her on.

HIS FOURTH APPOINTMENT

Echoes of the supreme court fight rumbled when Justice Brandeis decided to retire from the bench.

His retirement gave President Roosevelt his fourth appointment in less than 20 months. Hugo L. Black was first, in August, 1937. Stanley F. Reed was appointed in January, 1938. Felix Frankfurter was appointed this year. If the fifth opportunity for an appointment occurs before Jan. 20, 1941, Mr. Roosevelt will have named a full majority of the court in the last three and one half years of his administration.

It seems an adequate answer to his restlessness, which flared up in the supreme court fight. He was impatient to change the philosophy of the court at once, neglecting entirely the stability which a gradually changing court imparts to the country. Though some presidents, Lincoln, for instance, were able to appoint a majority in a few years, many others, including Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Calvin Coolidge, and Herbert Hoover, were content with less than a majority.

As time passes, in other words, it is more plain than ever that what happened to the President in the supreme court fight was a rebuke for impetuosity in a place where impetuosity has no place.

Per capita debt, $305; per capita cash, $50. This comes from throwing arithmetic out of the window.

HOPE FOR PARTY PEACE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Worried about the 1940 possibilities of a split in their ranks, several Democratic senators said today they hoped President Roosevelt would bid for party peace when he returns next month from his Caribbean cruise.

Although not suggesting any specific course, Senator Brown (D-Mich) explained that middle-of-the-road Democratic senators had expressed a wish for harmony.

"I believe that conditions are ripe for an attempt to get the somewhat divergent factions of the party together and solidify the party for the 1940 battle," Brown said.

One anti-administration Democrat declared any successful harmony move would have to be initiated by the White House.

Asking that his name be withheld, he suggested the President might go far toward healing party wounds if he would have a series of heart-to-heart talks with senators who have opposed some of his measures but who desire party peace.

The chief executive has talked several times recently with Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), who led the successful fight against the administration's court reorganization bill in 1937. Wheeler was one of the few opponents of that measure who voted for the full $875,000,000 WPA appropriation recently requested by Mr. Roosevelt.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant to the attorney general who sometimes has acted as the President's legislative representative at the capitol, resigned last night to return to private law practice in Ohio or New York. Keenan was particularly active among senators during the court bill controversy.

It generally was believed that Mr. Roosevelt would resurvey the entire political situation during his Caribbean trip. On his return, the first indication of his attitude toward opposition senators may be demonstrated in his appointment of a successor to Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who retired this week.

Several anti-administration Democrats, including Senators King (D-Utah) and Burke (D-Neb), are hopeful that Harold M. Stephens of Utah will be named. Stephens now is a justice of the court of appeals for the District of Columbia.

Vitamin D Necessary Item
In Child Diet, Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

RICKETS, that nutritional disease of childhood which we discussed yesterday, is most prevalent in the spring months. The incidence rises to its peak in March and sinks to the lowest level in September. Obviously, this is related to sunlight. It appears after the long period of winter darkness.

Rickets is directly dependent on the lack of Vitamin D in the body. But Vitamin D is formed in the body by the action of sunlight on the skin, and stored in the liver. Feeding Vitamin D by mouth in the form of fish liver oils—fish store it in the body more abundantly than any other animals—will supply enough to prevent rickets, but feeding Vitamin D should always be supplemented by sunshine exposure.

Enough Exposure
Therefore, in these days of returning sunlight be sure your baby is getting enough exposure to prevent the development of rickets. And notice carefully how much sun the baby really does get. The baby is in the sunlight in the baby-carriage—all very well. First, the mother may discover that the baby is blinking, so she promptly shields its eyes and much of its face from the sun. Second, since the baby's body is covered, the child will then be getting only reflected light or skylight, which is only 50 per cent as effective as direct sunlight to prevent rickets. Third, the time of day will also affect the amount of sunshine or skylight reaching the baby's face. At 8:30 A. M., regardless of the season, the average loss of sunlight is over 30 per cent and at 3:30 P. M. it is over 21 per cent.

These reasons are enough to convince one that sunlight exposure should be supplemented by feeding Vitamin D in the form of fish oils. The real function of Vitamin D in the body is to aid in the deposit of calcium. It is the lack of calcium deposit in the bones which causes them to be soft, and this is the reason for the deformities of rickets.

Close Relationship
The relationship between the amount of rickets and the lack of sunshine in any population is remarkably close. For instance, rickets is far commoner in negro children than in white because the sunlight does not get a chance to penetrate through the darker skin. Even in countries where there is a great deal of sunshine, such as Algeria, rickets is prevalent because certain religious customs keep women and children indoors, away from sunlight. Purdah, for instance, is a religious custom in India, as in Africa, which keeps women indoors in the early stages after childbirth, and hence rickets is present in three out of every four children in these communities.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Another disease of infancy, called "tetany," in which there are spasms in the muscles, has been greatly improved and brilliant results have been obtained by exposing the patient to light.

The expectant mother, and the mother during the period when she is nursing the baby, require an extra amount of calcium in their bodies because of the drain of calcium in the milk and to form the baby's bones. It has been found that when mothers received ultra-violet light exposures the calcium content of the blood remained normal or showed an actual increase.

Questions and Answers
Mrs. P. L. C.: "What causes puffiness above the inside corners of the eyes?"

Answer — Usually increase in weight, perhaps due to lack of thyroid, secretion, perhaps due to indigestion, but very rarely, kidney trouble.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 W. 45th St., New York City. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

MONTREAL — Aphonse Duhamel, 55, has started a three-year prison term which he may not live to complete. Dying of tuberculosis, and so weak he could not stand, Duhamel pleaded guilty to obtaining money by fraud and was sent to prison.

How to Ease
CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

THEN—to make its long-continued action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

LONG AFTER sleep comes, VapoRub keeps working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion.

Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Former Ohio Governors

Varied Interests Attract Former Buckeye State Executives

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of stories on what former Ohio governors are doing now.)

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, Feb. 18.—Eight years after leaving the office of governor, Myers Y. Cooper prides himself that in more ways than one he is still somewhat of a "keeper of the elephants."

Elephants—the small kind, of pottery or the like—are the hobby of the tall, slope-shouldered and affable Cincinnati real estate dealer who since quitting the Ohio capital has won frequent recognition from national Republican circles.

Aided Hamilton
He was one of John D. M. Hamilton's right hand men during the 1936 presidential campaign of Alfred M. Landon, serving as "second-in-command" of Republican national committee headquarters in Chicago during Hamilton's absences abroad.

In addition, he stumped mid-western states in behalf of the former Kansas governor's candidacy, and letters attesting his work are a part of Cooper's campaign file.

Cooper's entry into politics was a part of his program of recreation, which he described as chiefly a "change of occupation. He is not an athlete and does not play golf, but he enjoys watching baseball and football games.

Friendships gained as student of farmers' problems—Cooper was born on a farm in Licking county—and as president of the Ohio Council of Churches, resulted in Cooper's endorsement in 1924 for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Wins In Second Try
He declined to run then, but was nominated two years later only to be defeated by Vic Donahey. In his second try for the governorship, Cooper was victorious in 1928 over Martin L. Davey, but lost his bid for re-election to George White.

This 64-year-old man, who made his first venture into business by selling chestnuts as a kid, worked his way through college, a salesman and became prosperous as a real estate and lumber dealer. Cooper got his start in real estate by erecting several almost identical houses on idle land more than a quarter-century ago—and selling them. When he left the governors office in 1931 and found the realty market slumping in the depression, he took a leading part in Cincinnati housing efforts to aid the indigent.

Although much in demand as a speaker and active in grange and fair management affairs, Cooper finds time to head a suburban bank and is chairman of the Little Miami conservancy district—a group modeled after the Great Miami conservancy district whose work bore fruit in the construction of flood-prevention earthworks in the Miami valley after the disastrous 1913 flood.

Cooper gets his principal relaxation each year by taking his family to Florida for a mid-winter vacation.

ROYAL VISITORS' SHIP PREPARED

Suites Built For King And Queen Aboard H. M. S. Repulse

PORTSMOUTH, Eng. — H. M. S. Repulse, 32,000-ton battle cruiser undergoing minor remodeling for its royal passengers, will show few outward structural changes when the work is finished.

The warship is being prepared for King George and Queen Elizabeth's voyage to America late this spring. The Repulse was designed as a flagship, with comparatively spacious accommodations for an admiral overlooking the quarter-deck aft. It does not fly an admiral's flag normally, however, and the captain lives in the more spacious quarters. For the royal voyage, Capt. Ernest John Spooner will move to his quarters in the sea cabin.

In discussing the changes being made in the cruiser, an officer said: "His Majesty has intimated that he does not want to upset ship-board life too much, and wants as little change made as possible for his accommodation as long as there is reasonable comfort for the queen and her ladies. The king has let it be known that he does not want heavy expenditure on the arrangements."

Near Gun Turrets
The captain's quarters are being transformed for the use of the king and queen. As a nucleus for the royal apartments are two large rooms at the aft end of the forward deck backing upon the after 15-inch gun turret and looking down upon the quarterdeck.

These are being made into the royal dining-room and sitting-room, with plywood ceilings and decorations in cream and blue. Off the sitting-room opens the captain's cabin, which will be occupied by the king, with a bathroom attached. Beyond this on the port side will be a spare cabin also with a bathroom, which will be occupied by the queen.

Next to this and jutting out as a short wing on to the deck is being built a special "day-room" for the queen, counterbalanced by a similar small wing on the other side of the ship for the accommodation of other members of the royal staff.

Other cabins for ladies-in-waiting, gentlemen in attendance upon the king and other members of the staff are being built upon this deck and also upon the half-deck just below and on the shelter deck just above.

"Tea Deck" Built
The after section of the shelter deck, which was formerly known as No. 4 Gun Deck, is being transformed into a small promenade or "tea deck," with half of it glassed in for protection in windy weather. Opening off this small deck, which gives a clear view right over the stern, is a small compartment being fitted for the making of tea.

Farther forward on this deck is the captain's galley, which will be turned over to the special chef and kitchen staff which the king will bring with him. From this galley a service lifts runs to the deck below just outside the actual dining room.

Several extra bathrooms are being installed, but structurally only 10 extra cabins are being built, the greatest possible use being made of existing accommodations and a number of officers shifting from their regular cabins to other quarters.

Right aft over the propellers and beneath the quarterback is a compact little chapel where the king and queen will attend Divine service. This, however, needs no transformation.

As to furnishings, much are being brought from the royal yacht, Victoria and Albert.

In the royal sitting-room, for instance, there will be a piano and a radio. In this room there is also a wide fireplace.

Cabins Not Elaborate
The sleeping cabins for both the king and queen, however, being ordinary and not over-spacious cabins, are expected to have fairly

Bound for Rome to help select a new pope, William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston is shown on board ship in New York. standard fittings, with no special ceilings or paneling.

Linen, crockery and other fittings are being brought by the king from his yacht.

The Repulse has two hangars just abaft the bridge on either side. The starboard hangar for this voyage, however, will hold the king's barge, a fast motor launch, from the Victoria and Albert, and extra baggage, while the port hangars will hold the ship's plane.

The short wing for the queen's "day room" and the similar one on the other side are where anti-aircraft guns used to be mounted. The removal of these guns, however, is only speeding up a rearrangement of the secondary armament of Repulse, which had already been planned. The guns removed were considered obsolete and were due to be removed soon.

Other small gun mountings have been removed, but this will leave the way clear for the rearrangement when the Repulse returns. Most of the extra cabins which are being built for the royal party will remain when the battle cruiser returns, for, although designed as a flagship, it has always been short of cabin accommodation for this purpose.

TEACHERS HEAR NEWSPAPERMAN

R.F. Fletcher, Portsmouth, Talks On European Troubles

They came out of the war with insufficient territories and raw materials for their increasing populations.
"They could not feed, clothe or shelter their people within the geographical limits assigned to them and they did not have enough colonies or world trade routes.
These have-not nations, of necessity, had to find a larger place in the sun, and the immediate way was through the short cut of a dictatorship and totalitarian government.
"Today all Europe is in an armed camp. There are larger armies, bigger navies, more air forces, by far, than at the time of the opening of the world war. If the present spirit of stealing and exploiting the weak is continued another war is inevitable—a brutal war with no even the medieval war's ethics observed.
"Non-combatants will be bombed and killed. Women and children will be murdered as ruthlessly as actual enemy forces. Such a war paves the way for the passing of civilization itself.
"There is still another answer.
It is given logically and completely in a speech delivered in Galilee almost 2,000 years ago. It has been called the Sermon on the Mount. Its climax is 'Whatsoever you would that men should do to you, do you even so to them. This is the law and the prophets.' It is called the 'Golden Rule'. It is the only possible way for individuals to get along together. It is the only possible way for nations to live and mingle in an ever-smaller world."

MANY PROBLEMS FACE NEW POPE

Successor to Late Pius XI Must Assume A Great Burden

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The pontiff who ascends the throne in succession to Pius XI—the pope of peace—must assume an international burden so great that the world scarcely sensed its magnitude until the aged man who had carried it was forced to lay it down.
Recognition of the part played by His Holiness in the world's problem is seen in the fact that his death for the moment stilled the bitter wrangling that was going on between great European nations.
The shock made them quit talking war for a bit.
Recognition is seen too in the eager speculation in many capitals regarding the identity of the next pope.

These Are Problems
Amongst his problems, the new pope will encounter several which have been bones of contention between the church and the fascist state. Some of them involve policies which are both fascist and German Nazi. Here are the chief issues:
The Jewish question broke in Italy last July when fascism proclaimed its doctrine of race, affirming that the Aryans and decreeing against intermixture with non-Aryan elements, such as Jews.
The church, declining to subscribe to any philosophy that erects barriers between races, immediately took issue with fascism, as it had with Herr Hitler's Aryan theories.
But that wasn't the half. Last fall new fascist laws were promulgated making marriages between Jews and Italian Aryans illegal. The Vatican claims that this violates the concordat of 1929 which recognized church marriages as having the full force of civil ceremonies.
The church maintains its right to marry whom it will.
Then there was the fascist government's opposition to the Catholic action. This is a layman's organization aiming at educating the social, civic, moral and religious conscience of the Italian nation.
The government said the action was meddling in politics, which was denied.

Hostile Action
At the time of Hitler's triumphal trip to Rome last May, the Catholic action was hostile to the visit. It will be recalled that the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano then quoted Pope Pius as saying about Hitler's arrival that it was a "sad thing" that "it is not considered exceedingly out of place and untimely to hold in Rome on Holy Cross day the insignia of cross that is not the cross of Christ." Rome was decorated with swastikas.
In July the Pope again was quoted in the Osservatore as saying: "Who injures Catholic action, injures the Pope and who injures the Pope, dies." The word "dies" was interpreted as meaning "dies spiritually."

Another grave problem revolves about the fascist youth movement.
The Vatican says that this trespasses on the church's prerogative to look after youth's moral instruction in school, as provided for in the concordat.
The youth movement is calculated to inculcate into the young people all the principles of fascism.
By the same token the Hitler youth movement in Germany is designed to Nazify every young mind in the country.

After taking a leading part in liquor debates and political efforts to win and preserve prohibition, Dr. Wilson waged his last fight against liquor during the recent tide that swept the nation in 1932.

JOBLESS BOARD TO BE REVISED

Administration Takes Over UCC As "Ripper" Passes House

error; the administrator for a four year term, the board members for six-year terms.
The present commissioners whose jobs will be abolished are Chairman W. T. Roberts, Democrat, of Bridgeport, Walter J. Mackey, Republican, of Canton, and Keith Lawrence, Democrat, of Cleveland. Lawrence was confirmed by the previous senate a few minutes before its members' terms expired.
Republicans contended in debate that reorganization of the insurance system was necessary to insure prompt payment of benefits; to increase efficiency and to reduce expenses.
Democratic Floor Leader Michael
A. Feighan of Cleveland asserted benefits "were being paid more promptly in Ohio than in any other state, and that administrative expenditures in the handling of unemployment compensation were lower than in comparable states."

Hits at Mrs. Smith
Republican Floor Leader J. Harry McGregor of Coshocton declared that Mrs. Smith had controlled job appointments under the commission and added that "neither Myrna Smith nor any other person like that is going to determine the policy of unemployment compensation."

Rep. Lody Huml D-Cuyahoga told the house that "this is nothing but a corrupt and selfish job grab, and you'll be sorry for it. Remember that 'ripper' governors are one-term governors."
He warned, too, that spokesmen for organized labor, who opposed the bill, "will not forget about this."
Rep. Donald D. Canfield (R-Wood) said the bill was needed to "straighten out the mess caused" by a "drunken lame duck session" of the legislature controlled by Democrats.

"Why don't you be honest and say you just want the jobs?" Rep.
H. L. Mason (D-Wyandot) inquired of the Republicans.
Before the legislature adjourned until Monday night, the house passed a bill which would require the state treasurer to redeem cancelled sales tax coupons at three per cent of their face value. The measure returns to the senate for concurrence in minor amendments.

FAVORS LARGER U. S. AIR FORCE

Ohio Legislator Speaks
Supporting Greater
Number of Planes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — A measure to increase the authorized army air force to 5,000 planes today had the full endorsement of Chairman Harter (D-Ohio) of the house military affairs sub-committee on aviation.

Speaking before the house in behalf of the measure, Harter declared expansion of the army air force would "do more than any other single thing to show enemy-watching nations that we mean to defend ourselves and our liberties against any and all threats, and that we are ready, willing and able to do so."

He said the immediate objective of the bill was national security, and it was drawn "after hearing first-hand from our ambassadors to England and France of the situation in Europe," as well as the President's recommendations.

"No war hysteria has motivated your committee or will influence this house in passage of the bill," the Ohio Democrat declared. He attacked Republican proposals for spreading the program over a three-year period, asserting "no man can tell what air power we might need three years from now. The bill provides the irreducible minimum of what should be done at this time."

Harter urged an impregnable defense of the Panama canal to "keep our defense lifeline between the oceans open. Our ability to utilize the Panama canal at all times means we can defend twice as much coast line with half as many battleships."

Ex-Film Vampire Theda Bara—Then and Now

Theda Bara as "Carmen"—1915.

And Now

Theda Bara—yesterday's screen siren No. 1—has returned to New York after a stay abroad, and is living quietly with her husband, Charles Brabin, in an apartment off Fifth Avenue in New York. She is a homebody, an omnivorous reader, a raconteur and foreign commentator. Is anybody on the screen today doing her "vampire" role of the silent days? "Yes, but in a different way," she answers. "The comethier appeal of a woman never changes, on the screen or off."

Theatre Attractions

Charles Starrett's "Rio Grande," which shows tonight and Saturday at the Grand, co-featuring Ann Doran and the Sons of the Pioneers, is a swift-moving drama of outdoor action, mystery and revenge. It is one of the most successful of Starrett's adventure-filled productions.

A romance between the cowboy and Miss Doran and music by the Sons of the Pioneers, led by Bob Nolan, are highlights of the film.

Heroine's Brother Killed
Ed Barker, villainous cattle king, climaxes his campaign to obtain the Andrews cattle ranch, by slaying the young owner from ambush. Andrews, however, had previously feared Barker and had sent south to Texas for help from Cliff Houston, a heroic, straight-shooting pal. Houston arrives to find Jean, Andrews' sister, about to be deserted by her crew of punchers who are in deadly fear of Barker and his murdering henchmen. Only old Hank, Jean's grizzled foreman, has courage enough to stand by her.

Houston sends for some of his loyal young cowboy friends, and then sets out not only to save Jean's ranch for her but to prove Barker is the killer who has been terrorizing the range.

From that point on, "Rio Grande" moves, if possible, even more swiftly. It carries striking suspense to a grand climax. In addition, "Rio Grande" is played by Hank Bell, Dick Curtis, and other well-known western action players.

"Duke of West Point"
At the State tonight and Saturday is "The Duke of West Point," a romantic and dramatic tale of the military academy cadets and their life there.

The story is concerned with the enrollment of Steve Early, nicknamed the "Duke" because he hails from England and holds to a snobbish point-of-view until he is brought down to earth by the other plebes who are also put through their various paces.

Early is befriended, and befriends, two other young plebes—but he makes the mistake of alienating the upper classmen by his superior attitude. Romance enters his life when he meets Ann Porter, and risks punishment thereafter to have dates with the lady. How he receives the "silent" treatment and how he is finally vindicated provide several scenes of thrills and excitement.

Steve Early is portrayed by Louis Hayward, and Ann Porter is played by Joan Fontaine.

BEER PARLORS TO STAY OPEN

Kills Measure To Force Beer Places To Close Doors On Sunday

COLUMBUS, Feb. 17.—Proposed legislation to require the closing on Sunday of establishments which will sell beer (including 3.2) wine and liquor has met death at the hands of the senate liquor control committee.

The bill was introduced by Sen. Maurice W. Lipscher, who said it was designed to eradicate the illegal sale of alcoholic beverages on the Sabbath. Hotels, dining cars and drug stores selling medicinal liquor would have been exempted from its provisions.

Ben M. Harris, representing the Buckeye liquor dealers of Mahoning county, said the measure would help liquor permit holders who sold legitimately.

The committee voted unanimously to postpone action on the measure indefinitely after representatives of beer and liquor interests, drug stores and hotels expressed opposition.

The opponents asserted the bill was discriminatory and would damage business. They added that proper enforcement of the laws would correct the evils at which the bill was aimed. Most of them agreed that the liquor laws were being enforced more strictly since the new administration took office and suggested that the liquor department be given sufficient opportunity to stamp out violators.

Even State Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor said he didn't see what good one more law would do in eliminating illegal sales on Sunday.

The beer dealers were disturbed particularly because the bill would remove their right to sell 3.2 beer on Sunday.

LIMBACH RIPS "RIPPER" DRIVE

State Democratic Chief
Lashes G. O. P. at Lisbon Rally

tionaries it has gone down to defeat. The advancement of the program of liberalism must be carried forward even though we are sometimes accused of being enemies of business."

In concluding his talk, Limbach said: "I feel that the Democratic party has kept faith with the common person and that the common person will keep faith with us. My plea is this: Do not let our ranks be divided. Government exists for men and women. It does not exist for government. Nothing can stop the Democrats if they follow this ideal."

William J. Kennedy, former secretary of state, attended the meeting and spoke briefly following Limbach's address.

"I do not agree with those party members who say the Democratic party in Ohio is in the dog-house," Kennedy said. "It is not a minority party—it is a disorganized party. There is a way to peace and harmony and we can and will be victorious in 1940."

"Critics of the national administration say 'look at the budget'. I'm willing to admit that there has been greater spending than ever before. But we can't balance the budget by starving people to death. A balanced social order will balance the budget eventually."

For Underprivileged

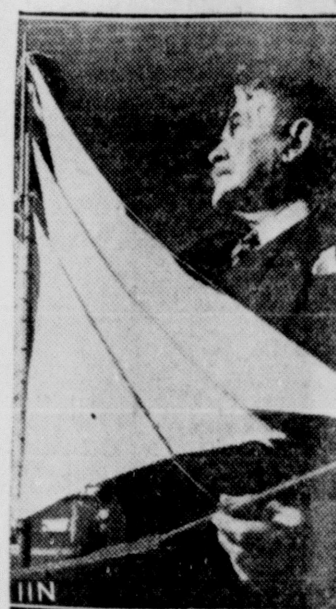

"There is no room in the country for any party not willing to protect the rights of the underprivileged," Kennedy concluded. "If we as Democrats are not willing to shoulder this responsibility, then we are not worthy to be called Democrats."

Both speakers were introduced by John Fickes of Wellsville, county Democratic chairman. Other county Democratic leaders responding to introductions included Judge S. W. Crawford, Clerk of Courts Carl Stacey, County Commissioners Frank Fisher and Austin Getz; Robert Patterson, committee member; C. V. Beatty, member of the county board of elections, and Sheriff Harry Gosney.

E. H. Sullivan, chief deputy clerk of courts, was in charge of the program for the rally.

Tom Reese Makes City Bowling Tournament One-Man Show

American League Bowler Cops Lead In All-Events; Takes Third In Singles

T. Reese Adds New Laurels To String With Performance In Doubles and Singles Events of City Handicap Bowling Tourney

The fourth annual City Handicap Bowling tournament, bringing into action some 190 bowlers from Salem and surrounding territory, was developed into a one-man show with Tom Reese of the Fernengel club of the American league as the featured performer.

Reese, who paced the Trans-actors into first place and the City into third place in the five-man event, added new laurels to his string at the Masonic temple last night as he took over first place in the all-events, third place in the singles and combined with Dick Konnerth in moving into sixth place in the doubles.

He put together a game of 214, 18 and 21 and added a 30-pin handicap to move into third place in the singles with a 640 score. In the doubles for the all-events, he rolled 582 in the first game, then he rolled 582 in the second game to lead his two-man team into sixth position with a 1144 score, which included a 114-pin handicap.

Actual Count of 1824

In his first activity in the doubles Wednesday night, Reese turned in a 612 series which combined with a 602 in Monday night to give him a combined 1214 score. He also holds the lead in the all-events class with handicap with a total count of 1914 for nine games in three events. He received a handicap of 10 pins a game.

Keith Harris and Jess Hays are tied for second in the all-events class without handicap with totals of 1676 apiece. On Monday night, Reese rolled 1839 while Brad Akers is second in the handicap class with 1819.

Except for Reese taking over third in the singles and Reese and Konnerth moving into sixth in the doubles, no other changes were made in the doubles and singles standing during tournament action last night.

Reese's Meier remains in the lead in the singles with the 601 score he rolled Monday night. While Paul Covert and Bill Finley continue out in front in the doubles with the 1257 score they recorded Tuesday night.

The doubles and singles events will come to a close tomorrow afternoon.

SMITH CREAMERY QUINT CAPTURES CLASS B HONORS

Defeats Cadets to Take First Half Title In Cage Loop

Piling up a five-point lead in the first half and protecting it in the second half, Smith's Creamery quint defeated the Carroll Cadets, 26 to 22, at the Memorial building last night to annex the first half championship of the city's Class B basketball league.

The game was a play-off for the first half laurels made necessary when the two teams finished their first half schedules with like records of nine victories and two defeats.

The Creamery quintet outscored the Cadets in three of the four periods in chalking up the important victory. Smith's tallied five points to the Cadets' four in the first frame, nine points to the Carroll quint's five in the second period and five points to the Cadets' four in the last quarter.

Score
Drakulich, Panzotte and Beck paced the Smith scoring, making all but three of their team's points. Jack Hickling led the Cadets with 10 points.

The Althouse Motors, first half champion of the Class A loop, moved into a tie for first place in the senior circuit's second half race by trouncing the Sigle Florists of Calla, 53 to 28, in one of two Class A games played along with the Class B championship tilt.

After roaring away to a 12-point lead in the first three periods, the Motors outscored the Florists, 21 points to nine in the final frame to win easily. Sam Drakulich and Ed Jeffries led the Motors scoring with 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Reisman's chucked up its second victory in four second half games in the other Class A engagement, winning over the Betise Club, 35 to 27. It was the third defeat of the second half for the Betise cagers.

Reisman's took the lead in the second quarter and held the advantage throughout the remainder of the game.

ASHLAND STAR DEVELOPED Legs Running Trapline

ASHLAND, Feb. 17.—A pair of tireless legs developed on a trapline is carrying Gilbert Dadds of Ashland college toward a glory seat in track competition.

A 20-year-old son of a minister, Dadds first projected himself into the national track scene when he pressed Don Lash of Indiana, America's foremost miler, in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl Jan. 1. Lash won only because of a powerful finish, then confessed:

"The kid had me scared."

The youth came out of the west to Ashland to study for the ministry. While his father had a church at Falls City, Neb., Dadds had a trapline during winter months and in order to get around it each morning he had to run 60 miles. One day he hatched a plan to enter a track meet without permission of school authorities. He missed the mile and one-half run. Immediately a neighbor and one-time great runner took an interest in him.

Lloyd Hahn of Falls City, former Olympic star and holder of numerous track records, coached Dadds for the remainder of his high school career. The boy left Falls City High undefeated and set Nebraska records in the half mile and the mile.

He was virtually unknown in Ohio until he stepped forth last spring and set a new record and won the Ohio conference cross-country at Muskingum college. It was his first cross-country, too.

The first two-mile race he ever ran was at New Orleans last New Year's day, when Lash had to come from behind to nose him out by five yards.

There's no indoor track at Ashland college, but Dadds has trained constantly throughout the winter. If the snow isn't too deep, he'd run in it; if it was, he'd shovel a path around the field track and run.

Ashland college is getting the idea they've got a star in their midst. Dadds shrugs and keeps running.

BOWLING RESULTS

The Salem Label Company's lead in the Commercial league was cut from three to two games at the Grate Recreation alleys last night as the Crescent Machine took two out of three heats with the Labelmen after the second-place Merit Shoes had won two of three games.

The two victories by Merit's and the two losses by the Label team combined to slice the Labelmen's lead.

Smith's Creamery clung to third place by taking two out of three games with the Salem Polo Club, while the Washingtonville Odd Fellows hung onto fourth position by winning two out of three tilts with Berg Bretzels.

The two cellar-ranking teams, Salem News and Grate Service, clashed in a match in the cellar of the Grate Recreation parlor with the Service team sweeping all three games to advance from 12th to 11th place.

In a special match at the Grate drives, the Glidden Paint ladies of Salem lost to the Columbiana Barons men's team, 2373 to 2194.

INSECT HORDES LEADING ENEMY

War Waged Incessantly
Against Plant Pests
By Government

WASHINGTON—America's most dangerous enemy, a government report shows, has no army, navy or air force.

The government annually spends many millions of dollars waging a war against insects and plant diseases which cause damage amounting into hundreds of millions of dollars each year.

It is a war for survival of the human race against an ever-threatening encroachment of plant pests. A victory for the pests would mean starvation for man, according to entomologists of the Department of Agriculture.

"Constant warfare, on a scale impossible for individuals or even localities, is essential to keep the nation's more important insect enemies and plant diseases from getting the upper hand," Dr. Lee A. Strong, chief of the department's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, said.

Can Be No Let-Down
"Any let-down in this warfare makes past efforts practically worthless and calls for redoubled efforts in the future. Insects can multiply so fast under conditions favorable to them that a comparatively small number soon restores their ranks."

The insects and plant diseases attack virtually every important crop grown, causing enormous losses. Some are natives of this continent, others are "invaders" brought in from abroad in plants, seeds and fruit.

Strong said the bureau's principal campaign this year will be directed against spread of the white fringed beetle in the south and the Dutch elm disease in the east. He conceded that complete eradication of the beetle is impossible.

Hope for eventual eradication of the Dutch elm disease, and hence the survival of the elm as a North American shade tree, was retained despite results of the year's scouting which showed an increase in the number of diseased trees.

The results of two great defensive campaigns—against grasshoppers and Mormon crickets—last year proved effective. The government supplied the states with $1,125,000 worth of poison but which was estimated to have saved crops valued at $102,288,177.

Japanese Beetle Hardy
Another large-scale campaign is being waged against the Japanese beetle, which in the past two years has added 2,500 square miles to the area where it is destroying millions of dollars worth of vegetables each year.

Bureau inspectors guard every port of entry into the country to turn back shipments which contain insects and plant diseases dangerous to plant life here. Last year they discovered 1,751 "enemies" of plant life in foreign shipments. Most notable advance in the science of entomology last year were an insecticide for the destruction of apple worms, and another for protection from corn ear worms.

The apple treatment consists of a combination of nicotine, present in the tobacco plant, and bento-nite, a natural clay found in the west. It kills the worms without injuring the tree or fruit.

Two methods of treating corn against ear worms were developed. For fumigation, a small cylindrical tablet of hexachlorocyclopentadiene is inserted in the tip of the ear. For oiling, a few drops of mineral oil are dropped on the silk.

MAY GROW COAL, REPORT SHOWS

Can be Made from Sugar, Mining Engineer Reveals in Survey

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—In an emergency American farmers may grow the country's soft coal in their fields.

The fact that fairly good soft coal is being made from sugars, the carbohydrates of farm crops, was reported today to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers by E. Berli of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The sugar coal is too expensive to be practical but was made to settle an old controversy about the origin of coal and oil.

In the Carnegie laboratories, the artificial coal is made in two ways. Sugar heated in water at high temperature produces a sandy form of coal.

Excellent Coal
When weak alkali is added to the water, Berli said, "excellent coaking coals" are the result. Adding pressure to the hot sugar water increases the amount of carbon in the man-made coal.

These farm products coals, Berli said, can be treated with hydrogen to make the same products which the Germans and English obtain from "hydrogenated" coal. These products include gasoline and oil for motor cars.

In nature, he said, water in contact with certain rock develops the same kind of alkalinity used in the sugar-coal reports at Carnegie Tech. It is concluded that nature made its coal from plant sugars.

The old idea, said Berli, that coal came from the woody, or lignin, part of plants is as dead as the idea that petroleum is from dead fish. He said the Carnegie experiments show that coal, oil and bitumen all come from carbohydrates in plants.

CHAPTER XVI

Mattresser mounted the stairs and made his way down the long corridor which led to his own apartments. Arrived there he made himself a whiskey and soda, glanced through a pile of letters—mostly shooting invitations—without any particular interest and drawing aside the curtains, looked out into the night. He stood there for several minutes whistling softly to himself some half-remembered fragment from the improvisations of Elisabeth Stamier. He never shirked issues and he was perfectly well aware that a certain restlessness which had possessed him during the last few days was entirely due to his meeting with and the presence under his roof of this girl. It was not a matter about which he permitted himself to think seriously, but he was still forced to realize the disturbance she had made. It was rapidly becoming a problem. It might become a serious one in a very short time. Fresh pieces of music drifted into his mind. Then he suddenly forgot all about her. Something entirely material had scattered his fancies.

For as he gazed, from the window of that dark building half hidden by the trees had flashed a sudden light. He leaned forward. The light had become a steady one. Someone had turned on the illumination in the garage kept for his visitors' cars. He glanced behind him at the clock. It was well past the hour when the latest of his guests might have been expected to depart. He kicked off his patent shoes and replaced them with rubbers, exchanged his dress coat for a plain black one, showing no white front, slipped cartridges into a small gun which he took from his drawer, helped himself to a bunch of keys and made his way quietly downstairs and out of the house. Fifty yards along the curving drive and he was outside the garage door. He listened for a moment. The light had been extinguished. He unlocked the door softly, stretched out his arm and turned on half a dozen switches at once. There was a startled but familiar exclamation.

From the center of the big garage, Andrews, on his hands and knees, peered out.

"Mattresser!" he exclaimed in dismay.

Mattresser extinguished the lights, leaving the place once more in darkness.

"Come here," he enjoined. "I will show you the way with my torch."

From behind an old landaulette, Mattresser made a pathway of illumination. Andrews stumbled to his feet and made shamefaced approach.

"What are you doing in here?" Mattresser demanded coldly.

"You can guess," was the desperate reply. "I wanted to get her car."

"What were you going to wish?"

"Drive it to the sea—get rid of it anyhow."

Mattresser withdrew into a vacant corner of the garage and turned on a single light.

"Andrews," he declared, "I have known you since you were a boy but I never realized before that you were a half-witted ass. The police will be here hunting for cars the day after tomorrow and the person most suspected will be the person whose car is found hidden or partly destroyed."

Andrews admitted pitifully, "I felt I had to do something, though."

"The only thing you ran any chance of succeeding in doing," Mattresser told him sternly, "was to get Mademoiselle Stamier into trouble. Now listen to me. Did you examine the tires of Mademoiselle Stamier's car?"

"I glanced at them."

"What make were they?"

"The new pattern... English."

"Quite right. Now, do you remember when I left the surgery the other night I asked you to stop the car at a certain place?"

"Of course I do," the doctor agreed. "It was just where we nearly had the collision."

"Evidently the driver of the car put on the brakes as he or she passed us, because for ten yards each way, even in that soft mud, there was not a recognizable mark. Afterwards it was very different. There were distinct evidences of the passing, one wheel in the muddy path, of a car having the new Germanic tires. One of us, since you have taken the matter up it had better be you, should show a little intelligence in this matter. You should suggest that the road be searched for marks of the passing car. It won't take them very long to discover the Number Seven Germanic tire. They may pay a visit down here, my friend. What more natural? They will examine my friends' cars one by one. When they get to Mademoiselle Stamier's they will see that it is fitted with English tires. There you are, then. Miss Stamier is a good deal further removed from complicity in this affair than she would have been by your blundering efforts to drive her car into the sea or leave it in a wood."

"Do you mean me to understand that the tires on Miss Stamier's car have been changed?" Andrews asked hoarsely.

"Granted that you possess the usual amount of intelligence," Mattresser said smiling, "that fact would probably dawn upon you."

"Who changed them?"

"The man who took out his torch and made the discovery."

"And what about the Germanic tires?"

"They exist no longer. Miss Stamier's car, on all four wheels, has English tires and there's no trace anywhere along the lane to Upper Mattresser of such a new tire having passed that way. Just a lesson to you, young fellow," Mattresser went on, lighting a cigarette, "not to meddle."

"You are in earnest when you tell me that you did this?" Andrews asked breathlessly.

A moment later he regretted having asked the question. There was something terrifying about his companion's silence.

"Where did you leave your car?" the latter demanded.

"In the drive out of sight behind those laurel bushes."

"Have I to put you in it?" Mattresser asked, "or will you give me your word that you will go straight to where you left it and drive home?"

"I will do that," Andrews promised humbly. "There does not seem to be any other dumb fool thing for me to do."

Mattresser patted him on the back and his farewell words were spoken in an entirely different tone.

"Off you go then," he directed, "and just remember this. Whatever happens I do not intend trouble to come to Miss Stamier. You tell the truth if this inquest comes off and leave the rest to me."

It was a small but very distinguished company of Norfolk nobilities who were gathered together two days later in the private coffee room of the old-fashioned "Crown and Anchor Hotel" at Aylsham. Mattresser and Mr. Phillips Poulteney of the firm of Fellows, Son & Poulteney, coroner for the district, were seated at one end of the long table exchanging confidences. The room in which they were holding their impromptu meeting was a private one and the door was locked. Poulteney rose to his feet and moved to the hearthrug.

"I can assure you gentlemen," he said, "I have been coroner for this district during twenty-seven years and my father before me nearly thirty, and I have never known such a happening."

"You had some intimation, I suppose?" Bemrose asked.

"This much," the Coroner explained. "I had a telephone message from the Home Secretary instructing me not to open the inquest until I received a written communication from him which was on its way. Also with the instructions there would be a person who would be able to identify the —er—the deceased. Naturally I had to act upon this and keep you gentlemen all waiting."

The coroner continued, "This Captain Fergus, who was able to identify the deceased as his brother, turned up a quarter of an hour before the time and he brought me instructions which were signed by the Home Secretary himself. I was practically forbidden to ask any questions but Captain Fergus has since told me that he has seen very little of the deceased for the last few years but understood he had some minor government post."

"He was a king's messenger before the war," Mattresser volunteered. "I came across him once, I think, in some outlandish place but I must admit that I should never have recognized him."

"Well, you all know what happened," the Coroner went on, setting down his tankard and filling his pipe. "My instructions were to take Dr. Ridgeway's evidence as to the cause of death, and Captain Fergus' evidence of identification, to swear no other witnesses, to ask the jury for their verdict and close the Court. That I did. We know the deceased's name was Phillip Boyd Fergus, that he was about fifty-six years of age, and his present place of residence the Cavalry Club. We have medical evidence from Dr. Ridgeway, who certainly does not beat about the bush, that he found that death was caused by a powerful administration of a deadly poison injected hypodermically. On those two statements I was instructed without comment to ask the jury for a verdict. Naturally I received one and the only possible—murder against some person or persons unknown—but even the local policeman was not allowed to enter the box. Further investigations are to be conducted by Scotland Yard men who arrive at five o'clock tonight. At the last minute the Home Secretary does put in an addendum to
